ESTIMATES NOT READY.—The finance committee of the board of control met last night to make up an estimate of the expenses of the board for the coming year, but was unable to make much progress for the reason that the committees did not have their estimates ready.

VISITING THE SCHOOLS.—School Controller F. S. Barker, P. J. Lagan, Anthony Walsh, W. J. Hand and Peter Holt, comprising the teachers' committee, accompanied by President Gibbons and Secretary Fellows, began their annual inspection of the schools yesterday. Nos. 27, 33, 24, 34 and 38 were visited. The inspections will be continued next week.

D. L. & W. PAY DAYS.—The employees of the Diamond, Manville and Stora's mines, and the Scranton yardmen, were paid yesterday. The employees of all the collieries in the Luzerne district, and those on the Bloomsburg division will be paid today, and tomorrow the Lackawanna district mine workers and trainmen will be paid.

TO DO BLACKSMITHING.—It is proposed to establish in the new central fire station, which is to be erected in the rear of the Municipal building, a well-equipped blacksmith forge for the purpose of shoeing all the department horses and doing such repair work as is done in blacksmith shops at present. The cost of shoeing the city's horses is at present extremely high, and it is believed that a very considerable amount could be saved every year by hiring a practical blacksmith.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE

EXERCISES AT SITE OF NEW JEWISH TEMPLE.

Large Gathering of Members of the Anshe Chesed Congregation Yesterday Afternoon—Rabbi Auspacher Delivered the Principal Address and Was Assisted by Rabbi Salzman, of Wilkes-Barre—Address by B. Moses, President of the Congregation.

The corner stone of the beautiful new temple which the Reformed Jewish congregation of Anshe Chesed is erecting on Madison avenue near Vine street was laid yesterday afternoon with appropriate exercises in the presence of a large gathering.

Seats had been arranged on the floor of the building, the basement of which is completed, and upwards of two hundred of the more prominent Hebrews in this city occupied them when the exercises were opened at 4 o'clock with an invocation by Rabbi Salzman, of Bala Bvith congregation, of Wilkes-Barre, who prayed earnestly that the temple might become a power for great good in the community.

A quartette consisting of the Misses Lydia Saller and Lida Garagan and Messrs. Williams and Roberts sang with beautiful harmony a selection entitled "Praise the Lord." Then came a Scripture reading by Rabbi Auspacher, of the congregation, who read a selection from the book of Genesis in which is related the story of Jacob's dream and of his rearing of the stone of Beth-el in honor of God. This, he said, is the first recorded instance of something in the form of a memorial being erected to the glory of God.

ADDRESS BY PRESIDENT.

B. Moses, the president of the congregation, made a brief address in which he expressed the hope that the temple might become the home of a united and happy congregation; an ornament to the city and a monument of glory unto God. The stone was then set on the northeast corner by President Moses and Sol Goldsmith, the vice-president.

He then placed a list of the original and present members; a list of the contributors to the building fund; a list of the choir members; a list of city, state and national officers; coins of the year 1902; copies of the four daily papers of this city; copies of all the Jewish publications of this state; copies of the American Jewish year books and of the service books used in the services.

The principal address was made by Rabbi Auspacher, who spoke briefly of the great heat of the sun which bore relentlessly upon the heads of all those present. The congregation is nearly fifty years old, he said, and a life of that length for a Jewish congregation in a comparatively small city is something to be proud of.

"It is a matter of wonder," said he, "when we look back over the last half century and consider the conditions which have prevailed here, to think that this congregation should have flourished as it has."

LADDER CAN BE FORMED.

He referred to the selection he had previously read from the Scripture and said that while there was no ladder such as Jacob saw leading up to Heaven in his dream that nevertheless a ladder can be formed by the members of the congregation themselves.

"You can form a ladder," said he, "of faithful service in God's cause; of earnest, united, unanimous action that will bring you and those about you to reach that heavenly goal to which we all aspire. The Jew needs not so much a temple to worship God in as he needs it to win the favor of his fellow men by showing them how he honors his ruler."

"We are now laying the corner stone of this temple. When it is completed and we come to dedicate it, may that day of dedication mark the beginning of an era for you and me and for the Jewish community in which we live; an era the distinctive features of which shall be a robust piety, a spirit of true Jewish humanitarianism, and the sway of charity. May we build not merely of flesh and blood, of bone and sinew, through which may flow human blood pumped by a heart animated by the best of human activities."

The benediction was pronounced by Rabbi Salzman and concluded the exercises.

WHEN ORGANIZED.

The Anshe Chesed congregation was organized in 1854 in a hall on Lackawanna avenue, the original membership being about fourteen. One of the original members, Emanuel Green, who bowed with age, was one of those who witnessed the exercises at the new temple yesterday. The present temple on Linden street which the congregation is about to abandon for its new home was erected and dedicated in 1868.

The new temple was planned by George W. Kramer who planned the Elm Park church. It will be 85x45 feet in size and of brick construction. Contractor Conrad Schroeder, who has the contract will have the building completed on September 1.

POLICE RAID SPEAKEASIES.

Two North End Illegal Sellers Fined $50 Each.

Della Murphy, of Thackeray street, Tripoli Park, and Elias Palmer, corner of Putnam street and Wayne avenue, were arrested last night by Police Lieutenant Palmer and squad, on warrants charging them with selling liquor without a license.

A large quantity of intoxicants was found at each place and confiscated. Magistrate Fidler fined each party $50 and costs, under the provisions of the tipping house ordinance. Palmer had not paid his fine up to a late hour.

The judge stated that the warrants were sworn out by neighbors.

MYERS FOUND DEAD.

Lackawanna Employee Died at Gouldsboro Ice House.

George Myers, about 50 years old, was found dead on Wednesday in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western ice house at Gouldsboro, where he was employed. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause.

The dead man is survived by a wife and two children. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SOME GRAVE PROBLEMS.

They Have to Be Met by the Managers of Circuses.

The conduct, transportation and management of a modern, big circus has been frequently compared to the mobilization and movement of the army. One point wherein it differs, however, is the work of the man behind the gun. The circus man has not the bullet of an enemy to fear. His arch enemy is the wind, with its attending dangers. In the face of a well developed western hurricane he has not a ghost of a show. Gallantry counts for naught in eleven out of a dozen cases.

With a show like the Forepaugh and Sells Bros. Circus which exhibits here May 20, attaches are drilled in life-saving tactics. In event of a storm or fire he has a special duty to perform. Where a half hour's warning of a wind storm is given, the circus is able to remove its menagerie and elephants to a high and dry place and lower the city of tents. But should it be apparent that the storm would strike the tents in ten or fifteen minutes, all the lights are extinguished, the elephants only are taken from the menagerie, and the canvases is lowered on top of the cages and the seats. The elephants are taken to the open for the reason that they have a terror of storms and would undoubtedly wreck everything if they ever started on a rampage.

The greatest danger, and the one constantly feared by the circus men, is the clear sky hurricane, resulting from cyclonic conditions in the air. Those come without warnings. The sky may be perfectly clear, when all at once a terrific wind will sweep the country, especially in the western states. In such cases it is the important duty of every circus attaché, high-salaried or small-waged, to lower the chandeliers in all haste and extinguish the flame.

RUNAWAY WIFE FOUND.

Spouse of Manager Rudolph Phillips, a New York Theatrical Man, Located in This City.

The wife of Manager Rudolph Phillips, of the Germania theater, New York city, left home suddenly last Tuesday with Franz Erlau, a German actor. They came to this city and three of his friends, who were down at what is known as the Klondyke hotel, near Mountain Lake, with them was found a young German girl, whom Erlau claims is his sweetheart.

Mrs. Phillips, who is a rather good looking blonde, and Erlau, were placed in a carriage and brought to the central police station, where they were arraigned before Magistrate Howe.

It developed at the hearing that when Mrs. Phillips left New York she took with her some $5,000 in cash and in her jewelry. The money, it is understood, was obtained by Erlau, her husband claims it was not. Phillips had been under the impression that his wife had been spirited away by Erlau, who had what he thought to be a strange influence over her.

She denied this at the hearing and proclaimed that she left her husband of her own free will. She denied that her relations with Erlau were improper. Upon hearing this statement, Phillips voluntarily withdrew the prosecution and announced his intention of seeking a divorce. His wife said that she would not contest such an action, if brought. She then drew up a paper in which he formally presented to his wife all the household goods in their home in New York city. He left in the afternoon for New York.

It was rumored last night that Erlau and Mrs. Phillips may soon appear at the head of a theatrical company at Music Hall.

AGATE NICKEL STEEL WARE.

The House Furnishing Review, in a long article regarding the Lalanc & Grosjean Manufacturing company's "agate nickel steel ware," says: "The Lalanc & Grosjean Manufacturing company has brought out what is termed 'agate nickel steel' ware. Originally they used a fibrous iron, made by the charcoal process, which was coated with a gray enamel mottled by oxidizing the surface of the metal. The revolution that has taken place in late years in the production of steel, both by the Bessemer and Siemens-Martin processes, has led manufacturers to seek a method of applying enamel on steel, instead of iron, on account of the reduced cost of steel. The usual process, however, applied to fibrous iron, could not successfully be applied to steel, because of the heterogeneous metallic surfaces, on account of the density and closeness of the metal. The resulting difficulties manifested themselves in the form of pin-holes, scales and readiness with which the enamel chipped and flaked off the metal, thus destroying the finish, beauty and durability of the article. In enameling, the addition of arsenic, lead or antimony to the glaze is said to give an adhesion that it lacks without these ingredients. The use, however, of such elements may, under certain conditions, be detrimental to health, especially if, through oversight, inexperience or carelessness, they are not properly mixed.

"To take advantage of the lower cost of steel and yet successfully coat it, led the Lalanc & Grosjean Manufacturing company to make a series of experiments, which resulted in the placing upon the market their 'agate nickel steel ware.' The invention which is controlled by them consists of an interposition of a binding film of metal, such as nickel, between the steel body and the enamel."

"This process produces the excellent effect shown in the wares that bear the stamp of this company, and does away entirely with the possibility of harm from the use of the above-mentioned mixture of arsenic, lead or antimony. The Lalanc & Grosjean Manufacturing company has lately been compelled to make a substantial increase in its manufacturing facilities in the form of another large rolling mill and a foundry at Harrisburg, and another complete galvanizing outfit at Woodhaven, L. I. They are soon to place on the
